Midtown Veterinary Hospital Earns Accreditation from Top Veterinary Association Less than 15% of small-animal hospitals in the US and Canada achieve AAHA accreditation

Rochester, NY— Midtown Veterinary Hospital is proud to announce that it has achieved the highest level of veterinary excellence following evaluation by the American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA). Midtown Veterinary Hospital earned AAHA accreditation after a rigorous review of the hospital's practice protocols, medical equipment, facility, and client service.

Unlike human hospitals, not all animal hospitals are required to be accredited. Pet owners can trust that an AAHA-accredited hospital follows the AAHA Standards of Accreditation, which are continuously reviewed and updated by leaders in the veterinary profession to reflect changing best practices from the cutting edge of veterinary medicine.

AAHA-accredited hospitals are recognized among the finest in the industry because they voluntarily choose to be evaluated on more than 900 quality standards that go above and beyond state regulations, ranging from patient care and pain management to staff training and advanced diagnostic services.

Midtown Veterinary Hospital first opened its doors in 1932, giving the community of Rochester a veterinary practice that has stood the test of time. Since the practice was purchased by Dr. Ami Maloco and her husband Ruel in 2018, they have made it their mission to create a practice that goes above and beyond in veterinary excellence. Expanding their reach from Dansville, NY to acquiring Midtown Veterinary Hospital in Rochester, NY, their team love servicing the community and educating their clients about the health of their pets. Midtown Veterinary Hospital have an amazing medical team, support staff that is well trained on advanced technology, high level of service, and customer care. They are committed to providing excellent patient care.
